

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

April 11, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

'The Brink' shows Steve Bannon as a human, and as the enemy. Sr. Rose Pacatte has a review of filmmaker Alison Klayman's on-the-scene documentary about Donald Trump's former strategist.

Global Sisters Report recently brought together the sisters who head the International Union of Superiors General and the U.S. Leadership Conference of Women Religious for a chat about some of the big issues facing the Catholic Church. Read their insights as UISG, LCWR leaders discuss clergy sex abuse, and the credibility of religious life.

'The church that raised me rejected me.' Those were the words of pain Young Voices columnist Mark Piper heard when he took the time to listen to the Catholic experience of his gay friend Lauren.

In DC Archdiocese, the truth is a good starting point, and that's what Archbishop Wilton Gregory has pledged to Catholics in the nation's capital. NCR's editorial finds good reason to be positive about his approach to his new, tough job in Washington.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*