

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

April 30, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

When the United Methodist Church strengthened its ban on LGBTQ clergy — a decision recently confirmed by the denomination's highest court — one group was hit particularly hard: LGBTQ seminary students. Read the story of Spencer Cullom, a lesbian soon to graduate from Duke Divinity School: What to do about ordination? A gay divinity school student ponders her future.

When the International Union of Superiors General held its last triennial meeting in 2016, it made a news splash when Pope Francis told the attending sisters about the formation of a commission to study the history of women deacons. Read about what the union's leaders have been doing over the past three years, and about what's planned for the 2019 assembly that starts next week: International Union of Superiors General advocates for women, sees influence grow.

In this week's Soul Seeing column, Jesuit Fr. William O'Malley reflects on the Beatitudes in the Age of Me First.

You may recall GSR's recent story on Lovers of the Holy Cross sisters' service in California. The Vietnam-founded congregation has a major anniversary coming up in 2020 and the Los Angeles contingent is preparing: Q&A with Sr. Grace Duc Le on the 350th anniversary of Lovers of the Holy Cross.

Sr. Mary Ellen Brody writes about her experiences traveling to Honduras with the "reverse caravan," envisioning a world where **migration is not criminalized**.

Advertisement

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.