

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

May 28, 2019

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Does canon law oppress women religious or protect them? Such legal questions are the subject of this month's installment of GSR's The Life, in which the panelists also discuss how legal structures like civil law can strengthen sisters' ministry.

A 'slow awakening' led Kevin O'Brien, new Santa Clara president, to Jesuits — leaving behind legal matters. Once a corporate lawyer, the priest is now set to head Santa Clara University in California. NCR's got a profile of the journey that took him there.

Michael Sean Winters has been taking looks at the various Democratic presidential hopefuls, and this time he's writing about Pete Buttigieg. Mayor Pete's rise is confounding, but also reflects cultural zeitgeist, MSW says, for starters — he promises more tomorrow.

Thank you, Jean Vanier, for teaching me to see, writes Dani Clark. A year at a L'Arche community changed her life, and she pays tribute to the international movement's founder, who died earlier this month.

The Little Sisters of St. Therese of the Child Jesus are dedicated to improving Haiti. Loretto Sr. Barbara Wander has been visiting the country for 19 years, and she tells us about the hard work and persistence of these "Loaves and Fishes Sisters."

Advertisement

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.