

by Mick Forgey

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

July 17, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

EWTN: connected to conservative Catholic money, anti-Francis elements is the second part of Heidi Schlumpf's series on the Eternal Word Television Network. EWTN owns a radio station, a newspaper, two online news services, a religious goods catalog and a book publishing arm; some of these outlets frequently serve as vehicles for rhetoric against Pope Francis.

"EWTN is not a nuisance, it is a claimant problem," Michael Sean Winters writes:

EWTN's voice is powerful, partisan and problematic.

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement has served letters to persons currently residing in church facilities declared as sanctuary sites. The letters notify the residents that they owe thousands in civil penalties. More in Parish roundup: Outreach to the addicted; foster families; sanctuary.

While Christine Schenk concurs with Sr. Rose Pacatte's opinion that director Garth Davis' "Mary Magdalene" film is perfect for Holy Week, Schenk also finds the film to be a perfect way to celebrate this eminent "Apostle to the Apostles" on or around her July 22 feast day.

Yousef Bashir once spoke to the students of Colman McCarthy's high school class on peace and justice. Bashir spoke of being a 15-year-old in the Gaza Strip who was shot in the back by an Israeli soldier. McCarthy told Bashir later that he ought to write a book. And now McCarthy is reviewing that book.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy
Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*