

Pitching priest Showing good form on the mound in Eugene Page 1

Rural parishes Faith with deep roots, relationships with tight bonds Page 6-7

Archbishops' houses See where Portland's deplorable past lived on the years Page 10

July 1, 2022

Catholic Sentinel

News from a higher perspective since 1870

Archdiocese of Portland

AFTER THE DOBBS DECISION ARCHBISHOP URGES COMPASSIONATE MINISTRY

Portland Archbishop Charles Joseph Sheehan called the Supreme Court's decision on the Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health case a "historic moment" and urged "compassionate ministry" to women in the wake of the ruling. Sheehan said the decision is a "profound challenge" to the Church's teaching on the sanctity of human life, but he also expressed hope that the ruling would lead to a "new era of compassion and mercy" for women in need. He urged the Church to continue to be a source of support and care for all women, regardless of their beliefs or choices.

The parish on Portland's most dangerous block

Joy and love remain even as coronavirus heartbreak clouds with noise, drug dealing and prostitution. Father Paul's message is simple: love is the only path to peace. He urged the parish to be a source of love and support for all, especially those who are most vulnerable.

'Being kind comes naturally to him'

Strong support for Dobbs comes to the fore as the Archbishop's message of compassion and mercy is heard. He urged the Church to be a source of love and support for all, especially those who are most vulnerable.

The art of finding Christ on the streets

The Urban Missionaries of the Heart of Christ seek out the most neglected. They are the "salt and light" of the world, and their mission is to bring the love of Christ to the most marginalized.

Jesús resucitado ¡Cristo resucitó! ¡Cristo resucitó! Page 2

Ordenación diaconal el 21 de mayo Page 6

En el matrimonio no existe 'la media naranja' Page 11

Volúmenes 27 Número 5 20 de mayo de 2022

elcentinela.com

ISSN 1163-0305

El Centinela

ASÍ TRANSCURRIÓ LA SEMANA SANTA

Por Patricia Montana

La Semana Santa en la parroquia de San Juan Bautista de Portland fue una experiencia única. Desde el Domingo de Ramos hasta el Domingo de Resurrección, los fieles participaron en una serie de actividades que les permitieron vivir de manera más profunda el misterio de la Pasión, Muerte y Resurrección de Cristo. El sacerdote celebró una misa solemne en la parroquia, y los fieles participaron en una procesión que recorrió las calles de la parroquia. La Semana Santa fue una oportunidad para reflexionar sobre el amor de Dios y el sacrificio de Cristo por nosotros.

Un llamado de Cristo a la conversión

El tiempo de pascua y Pentecostés, como el tiempo de la conversión, es un tiempo de gracia. Es un tiempo en el que Dios nos llama a la conversión y a la vida nueva. Es un tiempo en el que Dios nos llama a ser santos y a amar a Dios y a nuestros hermanos. Es un tiempo en el que Dios nos llama a ser discípulos y a seguir a Cristo. Es un tiempo en el que Dios nos llama a ser santos y a amar a Dios y a nuestros hermanos.

Condiciones indignas de trabajadores

Los trabajadores de la industria agrícola en Oregon enfrentan condiciones de trabajo que violan los derechos laborales. Los salarios son bajos, los horarios son largos y las condiciones de trabajo son peligrosas. Los trabajadores necesitan protección y apoyo para poder trabajar en condiciones dignas.

This illustration shows the front pages of the Catholic Sentinel and El Centinela newspapers of the Archdiocese of Portland, Ore. A news released issued July 21, 2022, jointly by the Archdiocese of Portland and Oregon Catholic Press, the newspapers will close Oct. 1. (CNS illustration/courtesy Oregon Catholic Press)

by Catholic News Service

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Portland, Ore. — July 21, 2022
Share on Facebook Share on Twitter Email to a friend Print

The Portland-based Catholic Sentinel and El Centinela newspapers will close Oct. 1, reflecting a national transition in Catholic communications, according to a news release issued jointly July 21 by the Archdiocese of Portland and Oregon Catholic Press.

The newspapers are the official publications of the Archdiocese of Portland but are owned by liturgical publisher OCP. The shutdown comes as a joint decision of the two entities, which are citing new directions in church media and hundreds of thousands of dollars in annual cost savings.

The Vatican began reforming its communications strategy in 2017, focusing on evangelization through a strongly digital presence. The pandemic only accelerated these changes as the faithful quickly learned to access church services online. Digital media can reach more people at a lower cost than traditional print media, the release said.

"The Catholic Sentinel and El Centinela have been integral in communicating to the faithful in western Oregon," said Portland Archbishop Alexander K. Sample.

The archbishop explained that he hopes to continue to offer an outlet for local Catholic news. He said the focus going forward will be more on evangelization and outreach and less on classic journalism.

Sample has begun producing social media videos aimed at people on the fence of faith. Those videos may be found on the archdiocese's website, www.archdpx.org, along with news, announcements, upcoming events, statements and other communications.

"OCP wouldn't be what it is without the Catholic Sentinel, which predates the company by more than 50 years," said Wade Wisler, publisher of Oregon Catholic Press. "The original leaders of OCP, then called the Catholic Truth Society of Oregon, had the foresight to acquire the newspaper in 1928."

"That gave the society not only a publication to further its mission of apologetics and evangelization, but also presses for printing their pamphlets and, later, Mass participation booklets," he said. "That laid the foundation for OCP to become the successful music publisher it is today."

Wisler said OCP is "extremely proud of and grateful for El Centinela, the Catholic Sentinel, their many dedicated editors and writers, and the good work they've done spreading the Gospel and archiving the history of this great archdiocese for the last 152 years. We mourn the end of these award-winning publications, but we also celebrate and cherish their legacy."

Advertisement

The Sentinel, in publication since 1870, is one of the nation's oldest Catholic newspapers. It has been named top of its class in four out of the past six years in Catholic Media Association contests. El Centinela, which has content unique from the Sentinel, also is highly decorated. It celebrated 25 years in 2020.

Ed Langlois, who started as a reporter at the Sentinel in 1993 and became managing editor of both papers in 2016, said he is saddened by the decision, but understands it.

"Given the financial pressures that the pandemic brought to the archdiocese and OCP, the writing was on the wall," said Langlois.

Church attendance dropped sharply in 2020 because of the pandemic. That posed historic challenges for the archdiocese and the nonprofit music publisher, which depends largely on selling church music books to parishes.

Langlois is hopeful the archdiocese will find a vibrant way to retain local Catholic news coverage. Mater Dei Radio already has upped its coverage of local Catholic news on western Oregon. Langlois said the station is well poised to keep up the reporting tradition.

The Oregon closings are the latest in a series of Catholic media shakeups. The Archdiocese of New York will shutter its newspaper in November. The Pittsburgh and Phoenix dioceses already have taken these steps.

At a national level, the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops announced May 4 that it would close the Washington and New York offices of Catholic News Service, which is akin to a Catholic Associated Press. The CNS Rome Bureau will continue its operations.

During the 2022 Catholic Media Conference in Portland July 4-7, Our Sunday Visitor, the Indiana-based Catholic publishing company, announced it planned to fill the void left by the CNS closures by starting a new Catholic wire service, OSV News.

An OSV news release about its new venture said the company began talks with the USCCB after the announcement of CNS's closure and "reached an agreement to acquire rights to the platform that CNS uses to produce and distribute its content," which will be on the same domain: Catholicnews.com.